

European Journal of Behavior Analysis
 VOLUME 2, No. 1, 2001

CONTENTS

François Tonneau:
 Equivalence Relations: A Critical Analysis 1

Commentary on Tonneau:
 Dermot Barnes-Holmes, Steven C. Hayes and Bryan Roche: The (not so) strange death of stimulus equivalence 35
 Harrie Boelens: Emergent matching to sample and equivalence relations 41
 A. Charles Catania: The roles of responses and stimuli in functional equivalence . 42
 J. M. Cleaveland: A primary preference for secondary generalizations 45
 Juan D. Delius: The what and how of equivalencies 49
 David Dickins: Equivalence is to do with symbols, and it is cognitive 53
 Michael J. Dougher: What is an indirect correlation? 56
 Simon Dymond: Beyond equivalence: the transform of functions and multiple relations 59
 Lanny Fields: Synergies between stimulus and functional equivalence 62
 Sigrid S. Glenn: Re-examining what we think we know 66
 Geoffrey Hall: Mechanisms of functional equivalence 69
 Linda J. Hayes and Rene Quinones: On the concept of stimulus function transfer 71
 Masako Jitsumori: Emergence of functional equivalence..... 75
 J. Moore: On the operational analysis of psychological terms: "equivalence" 78
 David Palmer: The transfer of discriminative functions from objects to verbal stimuli is derivative, not fundamental 81
 Luis Antonio Pérez-González: Stimulus equivalence, stimulus relations, and emergence of operants 83
 Jesús Rosales-Ruiz and Donald M. Baer: Observing and apparently not needing to observe, in the analysis of symbolic reactions 86
 Richard R. Saunders: On the infrastructure of stimulus equivalence research 90
 Nathan Stemmer: Pavlovian correlations and action frames 94

François Tonneau:
 Equivalence Relations: A Reply 99